Communication

NTA partners with critical agencies that directly affect trucking like the FMCSA, Nebraska DOT and the Nebraska State Patrol. We've agreed to provide a communication link to the latest updates so NTA members can stay on top of the issues. NTA communication includes the weekly Good to Know e-newsletter, bimonthly magazine and social media channels.

Education & Training

NTA partners with federal, state and local agencies to track the latest developments with regulations and compliance to ensure your drivers move your freight without worry when passing through scales or participating in carrier enforcement inspections. The most efficient way to manage compliance is prevention. NTA Safety & Training is available for on-site compliance audits, one-on-one consultation and training. In other words, call us before a problem and, when things go awry, call again. We may not have a perfect solution, but we're ready to help.

Health Plan

In conjunction with the NTA, Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Nebraska offers a variety of health care coverage options to members of the Nebraska Trucking Association Health Benefit Alliance. These requirements include employer contribution, employee participation and employee eligibility.

Groups with 50 or more employees may set the minimum threshold to determine employee eligibility as low as 17.5 work hours per week, but no higher than 30 hours per week.

Participation Requirement: Each subgroup must meet minimum participation requirements of 75% (net) of all eligible employees, less valid waivers, but with no less than 25% (gross) of total eligible employees, or 50% (gross) of total eligible employees. Events & Networking

Imagine a professional driver backing a rig through barricades with about a foot of clearance on each side then bringing the truck to a full stop on a line the size of a dollar bill. That's just one challenge at the Nebraska Truck Driving Championships. Imagine an event where a nationally-renowned economist discusses trucking in our state or the head of the Department of Transportation unveils an innovative plan to complete the long-awaited Lincoln bypass. That's just a taste of knowledge gleaned at our Fall Conference. Just about every month, your association brings programming to educate the industry and offer a place to meet others in the industry for fun and sharing of best practices. <https://members.nebtrucking.com/events>

Image & Appreciation

It's no longer a choice. Boosting the image of trucking is now an imperative. The shortage of drivers remains our biggest issue and other industries are courting our next generation (as young as middle school) to sway their career aspirations. The NTA is reaching out to everyone from middle school students to retired military to boost the image of the industry. NTA engages billboards, local chambers, media, schools, job fairs and college coordination. Unique driver appreciation events highlight our essential workers and pull local and national media into events and outreach efforts to multiply the effort.

Member directory & referrals

Quality business relationships are formed through NTA membership. It starts with our online and printed directory sorted by truck type (reefer) to business type (insurance, parts, etc). Members also connect at NTA events. Often calls come to the NTA office and staff is trained to provide referrals to NTA members.

Product discounts

NTA members enjoy product and fuel discounts. Pilot Flying J offers NTA the Axle Fuel Card with online account management, security prompt controls and potential savings. NTA members also get access to nebtrucking.benefithub.com. This site includes discounts on travel, tickets, electronics, apparel and even autos.

Truck Services Inc

NTA owns and operates an agency that serves Nebraska's carriers called Truck Services Inc. Whether you're new with one truck and a dream—or an established carrier in need of office support for routine filings—TSI can help. TSI provides registration, licensing, tax reporting, title work and related services to commercial truck and bus companies. Operating a truck, especially in multiple states, places you under the jurisdiction of several state and federal taxing and compliance authorities. If you are new to trucking, TSI will help you get everything done right the first time.
